Interview follow-up

Following up on our first interview: business review, examples, proposed role and questions.

- Business review and analysis (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/business-review.html)
- Example issue: gambling content on a tax-service page (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/example-issue.html)
- Example client story and response (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/client-story.html)
- Role scope suggestion (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/role-scope.html)
- Interview document (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/interview-document.html)
- Questions for Rebecca (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/questions.html)
- PDF package and downloads (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/downloads.html)

Business review and analysis

Public research snapshot: 10 October 2026. The existing report and its sources are preserved. The gambling-content example has a separate, limited verification dated 11 October 2026.

Direction to discuss

Bottrell presents accounting, bookkeeping, advisory, CFO, wealth and digital services through several brands and websites. My proposed starting point is to connect those entry points through consistent business information, clear enquiry ownership and useful reporting. The active services, delivery capacity and commercial priorities need your confirmation before selecting what to expand.

Treating the businesses as one commercial portfolio does not remove the separate contracting entities, professional responsibilities or financial-services disclosures.

What the public research found

Finding	Evidence	Practical implication
An Accounting Audit/Assurance enquiry button pointed to Media contact.	Accounting homepage, J-S01; Media destination, J-S03.	Confirm the intended accounting recipient and replace the route if it is incorrect.
Identical “Book Business Meeting” labels led to different Accounting and Wealth destinations; another meeting link had a malformed host.	Accounting homepage, J-S01.	Make service labels and destinations agree, then preserve the selection through handover.
A builder accounting/tax page used medical consultation language and a Medical contact link, with a Real Estate-branded footer email.	Builder service page, J-S04.	Check the shared template, approved specialist wording and intake identity.
Public office details differed, including Newcastle addresses and Gold Coast and Chatswood floors.	Accounting contact, J-S02; QLD contact, J-S06; Legal contact, J-S07.	Establish one verified office register. Confirm staffed, appointment-only and remote arrangements.
The current Wealth website named AvalonFS, while a publicly discoverable FSG issued on 1 July 2021 named InterPrac.	Current site, GM09; dated FSG, GM10.	Ask the owner and licensee to approve the current document and the treatment of historical documents. This is a currency question; the research does not establish a regulatory breach.
The Accounting public WordPress collections reported 1,161 pages and 2,383 posts.	Public collection response headers, PT07 and PT08.	Review high-priority enquiry pages and shared templates first. The counts describe public records, not indexed pages, traffic or customers.

These observations identify repair candidates. Their effect on enquiries, revenue and client satisfaction has not been measured.

Day-one outputs

1. Enquiry map: record each priority service, button label, destination, primary recipient and backup. Review the Accounting and builder examples first.
2. Approved business facts: establish a register of active brands, services, providers, offices, contact details and the person responsible for confirming each fact.
3. Issue register: preserve evidence, assign an owner and record the approved correction and acceptance check. Include the gambling-content example for technical review.
4. Lead baseline: agree what counts as an enquiry, a suitable opportunity and an engagement. Use existing systems before proposing replacements.
5. Onboarding walkthrough: review what actually happens to the most recent starter, including system access, client-facing guidance, supervision and readiness sign-off. Its current effectiveness cannot be assessed from public sources.

First 90 days

Period	Proposed work	Review evidence
Days 1–30	Learn the current systems, responsibilities and service scope; agree priorities; coordinate approved corrections; establish a baseline.	Verified registers, closed issues, enquiry ownership and an onboarding process map.
Days 31–60	Pilot one enquiry-to-handover improvement and one onboarding improvement, with the relevant team leads.	Before-and-after handling evidence, staff feedback, response times, completed handovers and readiness checks.
Days 61–90	Refine the pilots, document the working process and recommend what to expand next.	Results, remaining problems, delivery capacity and maintenance ownership.

At the 90-day review, assess results, role fit, responsibilities, decision authority and the next set of priorities. Targets should follow the baseline rather than precede it.

What the competitor comparison adds

Growthwise presents business-stage programs and distinct appointment choices. Evolution separates service journeys and names its leadership. Lambourne describes a staged consulting process. These are useful examples of making the next step clear; they do not prove better conversion or service quality. [GW1–GW2, EV2–EV3, LP2–LP3]

For Bottrell, I would first make the existing services easier to understand and reach. Decisions to consolidate domains, add locations or promote new service packages should follow actual enquiry contribution, delivery expertise and capacity.

Information only you can confirm

The public package cannot establish the currently active business scope, staffing and hiring plans, trainer readiness, onboarding arrangements, client-complaint process, internal systems, division economics or the authority intended for this role. The questions form is designed to resolve those gaps rather than repeat the public research.

Sources

All sources below were reviewed on 10 October 2026. Source IDs refer to the preserved evidence register.

- J-S01: Accounting homepage (https://www.bottrellaccounting.com.au/).
- J-S03: Media contact destination (https://www.bottrellmedia.com.au/contact/).
- J-S04: Builder accounting and tax services (https://www.bottrellbuilderaccountants.com.au/accounting-tax-services/).
- J-S02, J-S06, J-S07: Accounting contact (https://www.bottrellaccounting.com.au/contact/), QLD contact (https://www.bottrellqld.com.au/contact-us/), Legal contact (https://www.bottrelllegalaccountants.com.au/contact-us/).
- GM09, GM10: Wealth homepage (https://www.bottrellwealth.com.au/), FSG dated 1 July 2021 (https://www.bottrellwealth.com.au/wp-content/uploads/2022/12/InterPrac-FSG-Part-12.pdf).
- PT07, PT08: Public pages metadata (https://www.bottrellaccounting.com.au/wp-json/wp/v2/pages?per_page=5&_fields=id,date,modified,link,title), public posts metadata (https://www.bottrellaccounting.com.au/wp-json/wp/v2/posts?per_page=5&_fields=id,date,modified,link,title).
- GW1–GW2: Growthwise programs (https://www.growthwise.com.au/), appointment menu (https://growthwise.gettimely.com/).
- EV2–EV3: Evolution advisory (https://www.evolutionadvisers.com.au/accounting-advisory-services), leadership (https://www.evolutionadvisers.com.au/our-leadership-team).
- LP2–LP3: Lambourne consulting (https://lambourne.com.au/services/lp-consulting/), process (https://lambourne.com.au/about-us/our-process/).

Example issue: gambling content on a tax-service page

Direct public verification: 11 October 2026. The following is an example of how I would document an issue, coordinate an authorised response and check the result.

Observed evidence

A bounded, unauthenticated GET of Gosford Business Tax Services (https://www.bottrellaccounting.com.au/gosford-business-tax-services/) returned HTTP 200 at 01:56 UTC on 11 October 2026. The page's canonical URL matched that address. Its returned page text included:

> “Embark on an exciting gaming journey at Fair Go Casino, the ultimate destination for Australian players. Take advantage of a generous no deposit bonus…”

This directly confirms casino-promotional content in the public response at that time. The original imported research, reviewed on 10 October 2026, had identified the same page. It also reported that two older casino-related /posts/ URLs returned 404; those historical observations do not establish the condition of the wider site today.

What remains unknown

The cause has not been established. Unauthorised content injection or a site compromise is a possible explanation, but the public page alone cannot prove that the site was hacked, identify an entry point or establish exposure of client information. No logins, private systems, vulnerability scans or form submissions were used in this verification.

The gambling promotion could confuse a prospective client and undermine confidence in the tax-service page. The effect on traffic, ranking, enquiries or reputation has not been measured.

Proposed response

1. Record and escalate: preserve the URL, response, timestamp and relevant excerpt; identify the owner-approved website and hosting contacts.
2. Verify and contain: ask the authorised technical owner to confirm the content is unintended, preserve useful change history and approve its removal or replacement.
3. Investigate the cause: have the technical owner review relevant CMS revisions, access and hosting logs, accounts, templates and dependencies. Extend the investigation according to findings rather than assume a particular plugin or cause.
4. Repair and check: remove the unintended content, correct any confirmed underlying issue, and review affected pages and search records. Search removals alone would not resolve live unwanted content.
5. Prevent recurrence: assign ownership for content approval, access review, maintenance, backup/restore checks and monitoring. Record how staff report an unexpected change and who responds.

My role would be to coordinate ownership, evidence, priorities and acceptance checks. Technical investigation and changes would stay with the authorised technical owner. Any decision about client-data exposure or notifications would follow the findings and appropriate specialist advice.

Acceptance checks

- The approved service page returns the intended content and contains no unintended gambling promotion or outbound casino link.
- The technical owner records the investigated scope, findings, actions and unresolved risks; any confirmed entry point is addressed.
- Relevant access, update and recovery controls are reviewed with a named owner.
- A proportionate follow-up check looks for recurrence. Search results are tracked separately, recognising that updates can lag.
- The issue register records evidence of the correction, the approver and ongoing responsibility.

Sources

- W-G01 — current primary evidence: Gosford Business Tax Services (https://www.bottrellaccounting.com.au/gosford-business-tax-services/), bounded public GET, 11 October 2026, 01:56 UTC; HTTP 200; canonical unchanged. The response and verification record are preserved.
- PC06 — original discovery context: One Bottrell Review, supplied public Claude artifact (https://claude.ai/artifact/DYi4ezzAESBsSdm961bRtY), retrieved 10 October 2026. Its diagnosis of compromise remains an interpretation; the current direct check confirms the page content only.

Difficult clients: experience and an example response

My experience

At Newcastle City Business Centre, I handled difficult client and building situations in a senior role. These included distressed inmate calls, upset medico-legal appointment attendees and meeting-room users, accessibility complaints, requests for rent reductions, and people entering other floors and harassing private tenants. I arranged for disruptive visitors to leave or called police when needed to protect staff and tenants.

One situation involved a tenant yelling at me after I interrupted their client session because of noise. I remained professional and represented the business well. This account describes my experience; the response below is an example of how I would handle a comparable situation, rather than a transcript of that incident.

Example response

The tenant is upset about the interruption. I would acknowledge the effect on their appointment, explain the reason briefly and move the discussion away from their client where possible.

> “I understand the interruption affected your appointment, and I’m sorry for that disruption. I needed to address the noise because it was affecting others in the building. I’d like to understand what happened and agree how we can avoid another interruption. Could we discuss this privately once your session finishes? I’m happy to work through the concern, but I need us to speak respectfully.”

I would adapt the wording to the person and situation. A distressed caller needs a different response from someone threatening staff.

Actions and follow-through

1. Assess safety. If there is a threat, follow the safety procedure, get support and contact police or emergency services when necessary. Staff should have clear authority to seek help.
2. Listen and clarify. Establish what happened, what the person needs and which part of the issue the business can address. Avoid arguing about their motives or making promises before checking the facts.
3. Explain the boundary. State the relevant noise, access or conduct requirement calmly and explain the next practical step. Professional advice and outcomes outside the business’s control go to the responsible provider.
4. Offer an appropriate remedy. Use an apology, practical adjustment, discount or fee waiver only where justified and within agreed authority. Explain what needs approval and when the person will receive an answer.
5. Follow through. Record the concern, the action owner and the promised follow-up. Check whether the agreed action was completed and escalate unresolved issues.

What I would improve as the business grows

With experience, I could recognise appropriate remedies, but each step still required owner approval. I would like to earn authority within agreed limits so routine problems can be resolved promptly and consistently.

I would use recurring complaints to improve service information, handovers, accessibility guidance and staff procedures. Onboarding should include difficult-client examples, guided practice, escalation rules and a check that staff can apply them. Progress can be measured through completed follow-ups, repeat complaints and resolution time once a baseline is established.

Role scope suggestion

Proposed working title: Business Systems & Growth Lead. The remit should be agreed before the title. This is a proposal for discussion, rather than an agreed position.

I want responsibility for improving how the business works as a whole. My strongest interest is reviewing, then building and improving systems, and using evidence to check whether they work. Marketing, IT, coding and development, finance administration and building operations can all contribute to that remit.

I am willing to build towards a senior, challenging role, earning trust through results and taking on greater authority over time. A 90-day review would assess results and agree how responsibilities and decision-making authority should develop.

Areas I could own

Area	Proposed responsibility
Systems and workflows	Map work from enquiry to delivery, identify repeated tasks and unclear ownership, and implement agreed improvements.
Automation and development	Select useful tasks, deliver and test small pilots, document their use, then extend to larger workflows as my knowledge of the systems develops.
Client experience	Improve enquiry routing, handovers, complaint handling and follow-up; establish clear remedies and escalation limits.
Growth and marketing	Keep business information consistent, improve routes to the right service and test activities against suitable enquiries and delivery capacity.
Staff onboarding	Maintain the shared induction, role-specific pathways, readiness checklists and improvement reporting; coordinate guidance on representing the business consistently.
Finance administration and building operations	Coordinate agreed processes, records, service issues and handovers where they affect the wider operation.
Owner reporting	Make priorities, progress, results and decisions requiring owner input easy to review.

The role would cover the businesses and services Rebecca confirms are currently active. Each legal provider and its professional responsibilities would remain clear.

Decision boundaries

- Routine decisions: progressively delegate defined workflow changes, client remedies and operational decisions within agreed limits.
- Owner or designated approval: larger spending, major system changes, commitments outside the remit and exceptions to agreed limits.

- Qualified service leads: professional advice, technical standards, technical teaching and approval of work requiring their expertise.
- Designated trainers and supervisors: day-to-day technical training and supervision, supported by the onboarding system I coordinate.

One clear reporting line, early feedback and protected improvement time would let me work independently and reduce routine management and checking. I can help train people when needed; continual basic staff supervision should remain a limited part of the role.

First 90 days

Period	Proposed outputs
Days 1–30	Confirm the active business scope, priorities and decision limits. Review the current systems, client journey and onboarding process. Establish a baseline and complete approved quick wins.
Days 31–60	Improve one priority workflow, evaluate an automation pilot, clarify business-information ownership and report progress. Address agreed gaps in onboarding materials or readiness checks.
Days 61–90	Review the evidence, recommend what to expand or change, and run one approved marketing experiment where appropriate. Hold the 90-day review of results, responsibilities and authority; agree the next quarter.

Targets should follow the baseline. Useful measures include response times, completed handovers and follow-ups, rework, demonstrated time saved and staff readiness. Growth measures also need actual enquiries, engagements and delivery capacity.

Interview document

Proposed role and follow-up interview discussion

Sarah Blanch · Prepared 11 October 2026

The role I want

I want responsibility for improving how the business works as a whole: its systems, automation, client journey and growth. I want to connect the work across the Bottrell businesses so improvements in one area make the others work better.

My strongest interest is reviewing, then building and improving systems, and using evidence to see whether they work. Marketing, IT, coding and development, finance administration and building operations all fit into that remit, with each contributing to how the business runs and grows. I am looking for a senior role with clear outcomes, room to use my judgement and direct access to the people making decisions.

Business Systems & Growth Lead is a proposed working title. We should agree the remit first, then choose the title that fits your structure.

I'm willing to build towards this level of responsibility, earning your trust through results and taking on greater authority over time. A 90-day review would let us assess my results and agree how my remit and decision-making authority should develop. My goal is a senior, challenging role where I can help grow and improve the business.

Why I can contribute

At Newcastle City Business Centre, I worked in a senior position and handled difficult client and building situations. These ranged from distressed inmate calls to upset medico-legal appointment attendees and meeting-room users, including people angry about workers' compensation or other outcomes. I dealt with tenant complaints about our service, including being yelled at after interrupting a client session because of noise, accessibility issues affecting client retention, and requests for rent reductions. I also tracked down people who had entered the building, gone to other floors and harassed private tenants, arranging for them to leave with minimal disruption or calling police when needed to keep staff and tenants safe.

Throughout these situations, I remained professional and represented the business well. With experience, I could recognise when an apology, discount, fee waiver or another remedy was appropriate, but each step still required owner approval. I would like to earn agreed authority to resolve issues within clear limits, with a consistent process for escalation and follow-up. Client management is ongoing: I want to use complaint patterns to anticipate and reduce dissatisfaction and rude or disruptive behaviour, especially as the business grows and new staff are onboarded.

When I decided to leave, I stayed on at an increased hourly rate with a retention bonus to train replacement staff and complete my projects, leaving on good terms.

I work well with clear priorities and immediate, honest feedback. I want to know when something needs changing, and I take responsibility for following through.

What I would own

- Systems and workflows: map the work from enquiry through handover, identify repeated work and unclear ownership, and coordinate agreed improvements.
- Automation: select useful tasks, build or coordinate small pilots, test them against the current process and document how staff use them; then extend to larger, more complex workflows as I build the system knowledge and experience to deliver them reliably.
- Client experience: improve enquiry routing, handovers and follow-up, with measurable tracking of response times, completed handovers and follow-up outcomes; help turn the business's client boundaries into clear staff procedures.
- Growth and marketing: keep business information consistent, improve the buyer's route to the right service and run measurable experiments that fit delivery capacity.
- Onboarding systems: review and improve the common induction, role-specific materials and readiness tracking with service leads and designated trainers.
- Owner reporting: make priorities, progress, unresolved decisions and meaningful measures easy to see.

The role would serve the agreed businesses while respecting each legal provider and the people responsible for professional advice. Finance administration can support this remit. Routine office administration and basic supervision of junior staff should remain a limited part of it, so improvement work has protected time.

First three months

Period	Deliverables
First 30 days	Understand the team and current systems; review onboarding and training ownership; agree responsibilities and priorities; establish an enquiry and workflow baseline; confirm the correct service routes and business information; fix approved quick wins.
Days 31–60	Improve one important workflow; deliver and evaluate one automation pilot; establish a business-information register and change process; give the owners a concise progress report.
Days 61–90	Review the evidence from the pilot and client journey; recommend what to expand, change or stop; run one approved marketing experiment; hold a 90-day review of results, responsibilities and decision-making authority; agree the next quarter's priorities.

We would agree targets after measuring the starting point. Useful measures include enquiry response time, completed handovers, rework and demonstrated time saved. Growth measures need actual enquiries, engagements and delivery capacity.

How the role would work

I would like one clear reporting line, direct feedback and agreed authority for routine decisions. Larger spending, changes to professional disclosures, regulated advice and major system changes would stay with the appropriate decision-makers. I can coordinate with a capable team and help train people when needed; continual basic staff supervision should not define the role.

I prefer a hybrid arrangement with the average number of home-working days written into the contract. Two days a week is my preferred arrangement. I can work around onboarding and the business's needs, with the detailed pattern agreed together. Protected focus time lets me complete deeper systems work.

The base salary should reflect the agreed responsibility before any bonus. Hours, reporting line, scope and decision authority need to be settled alongside pay.

Questions for Rebecca

The 20 questions can be answered on the questions page (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/questions.html), where typed answers can be downloaded, or in the printable workbook (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/questions-for-rebecca.pdf). Both use the same questions; the workbook provides space for handwritten answers. Answers can be emailed to admin@sarahblanch.com.

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.

Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q1 · Priorities, scope and support

What are your two main business priorities for the next year, what have previous changes in scale taught you, and what would make you adjust the plan?

Q2 · Priorities, scope and support

Which Bottrell businesses and services are currently active, which are paused or inactive, and which would fall within my remit?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.

Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q3 · Priorities, scope and support

Who would I report to, what authority and resources would I have, and which decisions would remain with owners or qualified specialists?

Q4 · Priorities, scope and support

How would we agree priorities, protected project time and decision boundaries early so I can manage competing demands independently and reduce the day-to-day management and checking you need to do?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.
Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q5 · Systems, clients and results

What would success look like at 30, 60 and 90 days, what baseline and evidence would we use, and how would the 90-day review guide my responsibilities, authority and the next quarter's priorities?

Q6 · Systems, clients and results

Which systems are the authoritative records for the business, where is work repeated, and what results have existing automation or AI projects demonstrated?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.

Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q7 · Systems, clients and results

Which clients and services best fit your growth plan, and where do profitability, staff capacity and service quality support taking on more work?

Q8 · Systems, clients and results

How is an enquiry tracked through to engagement and handover, where are improvements needed, and which marketing activities have demonstrated that they bring suitable clients?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.

Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q9 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

How many people currently work in each team, how many hires are approved or proposed by role and level, and how will recruitment and start dates be staggered around training, supervision and review capacity?

Q10 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

What changes are planned for job-ad content, listing channels and candidate assessment, and how will you measure whether these attract people with the capabilities and reliability you need?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.
Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q11 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

Who owns the current staff onboarding process, when was it last reviewed and updated, and what happened with the most recent starter from accepting the offer to being signed off for independent work?

Q12 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

Is there a shared business induction with separate pathways for qualified accountants, trainees, administration, marketing, IT, other specialists, temporary staff and contractors? What must be ready before day one, including equipment, access, guidance, training and assigned support?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.
Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q13 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

How many established staff reliably work independently, who has demonstrated the ability to train others, and how do you determine the limits of their knowledge? What preparation, protected time and specialist support would they need to train staff across different parts of the business?

Q14 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

How do you check that staff understand the active businesses and services, give accurate and consistent on-brand answers, know when to involve a specialist, and receive updated guidance when something changes?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.
Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q15 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

What guidance, practical trials and role-specific simulations are used for new and existing staff, including difficult-client situations? How do assessment, feedback, retesting and sign-off establish readiness, and who makes that decision?

Q16 · Hiring, onboarding and staff readiness

Would it fit your structure for me to own the onboarding system, materials and improvement reporting, with qualified service leads and designated trainers responsible for technical teaching and daily supervision?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.
Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q17 · Client boundaries, formal concerns and working terms

What client behaviour crosses an agreed boundary, what can staff do immediately, and what remedies or concessions can they approve without asking an owner? How are staff supported and matters escalated, including when a valuable client is involved?

Q18 · Client boundaries, formal concerns and working terms

What are the actual systems for staff to raise a different view or concern, for addressing formal staff performance concerns, and for handling formal client complaints? Who owns each process, how is it recorded and escalated, and how are decisions, outcomes and follow-up communicated?

Questions for Rebecca

Please answer whichever questions you can. We can discuss the rest in person.

Return your written answers to admin@sarahblanch.com, or bring them to the interview.

Q19 · Client boundaries, formal concerns and working terms

What working hours, locations and base salary are budgeted for this remit, and can we record the agreed hybrid pattern, responsibilities and complete remuneration package in the contract?

Q20 · Client boundaries, formal concerns and working terms

What questions or concerns remain about my suitability for the role, including handling difficult clients? What would you like me to explain or demonstrate at our follow-up interview?

PDF package and downloads

The complete package contains every website page. Its questions section has space to write answers by hand. You can answer only the questions you wish to discuss.

- Complete PDF package (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/Bottrell_Rebecca_Complete_Package.pdf)
- All individual PDFs in one ZIP (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/Bottrell_Rebecca_PDF_Package.zip)
- Questions and handwritten-answer workbook (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/questions-for-rebecca.pdf)
- Business review and analysis (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/business-review.pdf)
- Example issue: gambling content (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/example-issue.pdf)
- Example client story and response (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/client-story.pdf)
- Role scope suggestion (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/role-scope.pdf)
- Interview document (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/interview-document.pdf)
- Homepage (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/home.pdf)
- Downloads page (https://sarahblanch.com/bottrell/pdf/downloads.pdf)